Carbotecnia undertakes this summer expansion works of its factory that will triple its production

The expansion works of the Carbotecnia factory, which have been developing since July, will allow the company to triple its production. An increase, which responds to the growth that the firm is experiencing, whose good results from its tests and trials in different crops are allowing it to expand throughout the world.

The growth of the company Carbotecnia in recent years has necessitated an expansion of its factory in Manzanares (Ciudad Real), with capacity to triple its production and is expected to start operating during the first quarter of next year.

> The surface of the new facility will occupy 8.500m2, of which 400m2 will form part of the laboratory and 700m2 will be destined to packaging and bottling

In recent years Carbotecnia has been forced to expand its workforce, its Madrid office and now, after several months of negotiating the project, its factory.

> After the inauguration of the new works, Carbotecnia will be able to improve its service, supplying with product and technical support to the thousands of clients of the more than 60 countries in which it works

Thus, Carbotecnia will continue to grow as a leading company in the design, formulation, manufacture and commercialization of special fertilizers based on the use of low molecular weight carboxylic acids.

Source: Carbotecnia