FIMA in the European elite of agricultural machinery

FIMA of large numbers closes its largest and internationally supported by more than 227,000 visitors, which means an average of more than 45,000 professionals to date. After five days, FIMA has shown excellent health food industry and machinery and dizzying figures: the participation of 1,357 exhibitors and more than 150,000 square meters, with 154 delegations of trade missions and the presence of visitors from over 50 countries on five continents.

FIMA, the "spearhead the food industry," as described by the Prime Minister of Aragon, Javier Lambán, on the opening day, closes its doors catapulted as the reference exhibition in Southern Europe. The 39th International Fair of Agricultural Machinery has given impetus to a market that is proudly displayed and shows its best side.

These are data that will become part of the history of FIMA and confirming the strength of competition in the sector, which is renewed vitality and quality, thanks to the high technological level displaying. Exhibitors and visitors have noted, over the five-day celebration, the potential of a sample that looks to the future with optimism.

The International Fair of Agricultural Machinery is part of the collective memory of the professionals. And the 39th edition, which has now closed its doors, it has earned its own merits, starring some of those memories by a qualified "of record" and that since the opening day, has succeeded in obtaining the support call all of visitors who, day after day, have crowded facilities.

FIMA has been able to become a dynamic and highly professional forum has demonstrated the capacity of the sector and its commitment to technological innovation and application. The edition of 2016 has served to demonstrate the implementation of new tools for agricultural development. Thus, the use of drones, virtual reality systems or GPS are part of everyday agricultural professionals and has been demonstrated in the sample.

Good vibrations, which were featuring by FIMA, were evident in the first day, with a good volume of visitors and also had the announcement by the Minister of Agriculture, Isabel García Tejerina, the implementation of a plan PIMA (plan to Promote Environment).

Source: Feria de Zaragoza