The biostimulant manvert foliplus celebrates 20 years with excellent results

The biostimulant manvert foliplus is an ideal organic product for budding, flowering, fruit set, development, fattening and resistance to abiotic stress.

> The biostimulant of the manvert brand, foliplus, celebrates 20 years being the flagship of the company Biovert and accumulating excellent results in all types of crops and in the more than 30 countries in which it is marketed.

This product suitable for organic farming arises from the synergy of the action of the 4 main ingredients of its unique formulation: amino acids, reducing sugars, algae extract (Ascophyllum nodosum) and naturally occurring phytohormones. The combination of these four essential elements for the plant at a high concentration provides numerous benefits that result in better budding, flowering, fruit set, weight and quality of fruits and tubers, as well as greater vigor and vegetative development and greater resistance to stress

In short, manvert foliplus improves the quality and yield of the crops, since its periodic application favors the obtaining of more fruits and of a better size, since it affects the different phases of the development of the plant. This constant in the results of the product application over these 20 years has determined the choice of the product slogan: note the difference.

With these guarantees it is not surprising that the star product of the Manvert brand -which also has its own logo, slogan and website at www.foliplus.com- continues to multiply its sales year after year, in addition to adding unconditional, both between the distributors of the manvert range as among the fruit and vegetable producers themselves, who see the results in their own field, and who no longer contemplate a campaign without using foliplus.
